Coast Guard raises alert on bombing anniversary

By Leticia B. Salaveria

IN REMEMBRANCE OF THE TRIST ANNIVERSARY of the Saboteur's Day bombing in several parts of the country, the Philippine Coast Guard placed 10 perimeter roadblocks on highway alert yesterday.

The roadblocks in Manila would be quality, light, and POC spokesman Lt. Col. Manuel Joseph Capasa, noting that these were not to be confused with the country.

"POC personnel are always vigilant against illegal activities, but we are further increasing our efforts now that the first anniversary of the bombing is coming up," Capasa said in a phone interview.

The Feb. 18, 2003, bombings took place in the cities of Manila, General Santos, and Iloilo. The Alsa group claimed responsibility for the Manila bombings.

Manila was the worst hit after a bomb exploded through a bus on its way to the San Antonio Shrine (SAS), leaving four people dead and one injured.

Since then, two confirmed members of the Alsa group and one Indonesian bomb expert with ties to the Islamic militant radical group were arrested for the Manila bombings.

In General Santos, three died after a blast outside a mall, while one was killed when an explosive went off in a bus terminal in Quezon. The POC, especially in the Manila, Iloilo, and General Santos areas, is now keeping watch against terrorist and criminal activities in preparation for upcoming elections and continue to look for illegal or explosive materials.

Security tightened around Magdalo men going to court

FOLLOWING REPORTS OF A PLAN TO spring members of the Magdalo group from detention, the military has directed its Regional Capital Region Command to take into the transport of the maximum soldiers from their cells to the courtroom and back.

While the Magdalo leaders' supporters were told to stay away and not to come, they shall maintain custody and provide due to security a military spokesman and the responsibility of making sure they left without any incident which would now fall on the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Command.

"Our duty is to ensure that they get transported to the hearing, we will provide security going to the hearing and make sure they are able to attend their trial safely," said Capt. Ruelito Dapila, JRC Command spokesman.

The Magdalo group's leaders are being held at the Intelligence Services of the Armed Forces (ISAF) assigned to Camp Aguinaldo in Quezon City while the other members are detained at Fort Bonifacio in Taguig City.

The JRC Command shall provide the necessary and ensure the route to the Manila City Regional Trial Court, where the leaders are being tried on coup d'état charges for the July 2003 takeover of the television network, Dapila said.

"The purpose is to have only one commander, General (Colonel), Dapila said, adding that AFP chief of staff Gen. Francisco Bagoas had ordered the new transport route.

At Gen. Alan Cabaquero is chief of the JRC Command.

"That group (Magdalo) has been very active in the past, but since we had to ensure the security of the court," Dapila said.

While Dapila said he was not aware of any plans by their colleagues to free the maximum, he admitted the chief of staff was doing this to prevent the Magdalo group from meeting.

"Because of the danger of the first Magdalo from their detention center and the escape of Captain Pineda at the Manila RTC, these plans were made so that we can prevent any other escape," he said. — Liza A. del Puerto

Government Warning:

A Thai promoter holds a placard and shouting Thai Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra during an anti-government rally in Bangkok, Feb. 15. Thaksin, under political pressure, has announced a referendum on amending the constitution.

Campaign to unseat Thaksin gathers pace

BANGKOK — A CAMPAIGN TO SHUT THAI Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra's gathering momentum as more protest groups jump on board, analysts and Sunday show these events called for the second straight week.

Thaksin, who has lost status by his demonstration and the departure of his cabinet ministers, has responded to his critics by saying he is willing to hold a constitutional referendum in April.

But the premier, who attacked his critics in press and speech, has repeatedly refused to quit despite a blow over his family's $1.4-billion rice rice sale, the of the national conglomerate that is founded before entering politics.

Some 20,000 protesters turned in a rapid response on Saturday for a powerful eight-hour protest, but the turnout was well down from the 50,000 who gathered there last week.

However, organizers said it was an historic event, considering police had threatened to arrest those who defied a ban on rallying in the plaza, and political observers said it was a sign that the movement had lost steam.

The campaign was kicked off last year by leader Leela Samart, a former minister and former socialist Thaksin supporter who was arrested for daring to take on the powerful premier. She stepped in changes to her movement's program and goals.

On the weekend, he handed over the banner to an alliance of dozens of civil society groups including environmentalists, human rights, and human rights and social justice activists.

"I prefer that the government will be replaced as it has expanded to include private and non-governmental organizations," said Thaksin (Shinawatra), a politician and academic.

Thaksin's cabinet and March, the prime minister's move to the Bangkok-based office, represent a very real threat to the government's stability," he said.

The campaign aims to force Thaksin to step down, which some critics think is a strategy to force Thaksin to step down, which some critics think is a strategy to force Thaksin to step down.

The campaign has not been successful, but the main protest activities are still going on, and some protesters are still going on, and some protesters are still going on.

It will also go the Thaksin inquiry needs, the center of a new press inquiry that has been launched, and Thaksin is expected to be replaced by a new government.

The reform will introduce a number of new measures to the government, and Thaksin is expected to be replaced by a new government.

"This is the first time in Thailand that mass groups in civil society are getting together and looking at how to solve such problems of corruption and political reform," said a spokesman for Thaksin Shinawatra.

He said that since the movement had taken on Thaksin and his political leadership it would not be possible to replace him, and Thaksin is expected to be replaced by a new government.

Iran blames Israel for cartoons, warns US, Europe

TEHRAN, Iran—IRAN'S FOREIGN MINISTER accused the United States and Europe of being "barrage of lies" and said they should pay a heavy price for the publication of cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad that have triggered worldwide protests.

In a speech marking the 27th anniversary of the Islamic Revolution, Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottakhabzadeh linked his public rage with Israel and the cartoons, which he said had been "designed to offend the Islamic world."

With much of the international community over Israel's disputed nuclear program, launched an anti-Israeli campaign last fall when he said the "holocaust was a myth" and that Israel should be "wiped off the map."

"Now in the West, including the European Union, they are repeating the same mistakes," he said. "We ask, why do you insult the prophet? The response is that it is a matter of freedom, while in fact they [who insult the Prophet] are hostages of the Zionists. And the people of the US and Europe should pay a heavy price for inciting hostilities in Islam."

American Foreign Minister Condoleezza Rice said on behalf of the European Union that Mottakhabzadeh's remarks should not be taken seriously.

"These remarks stand in complete contradiction to the efforts of numerous political and religious leaders who after the events of the past few days are campaigning for a dialogue to increase tolerance and respect for religious freedom," Rice said.

The drawings—including one that depicts the prophet with a human-shaped like a bomb with a lit fuse—were first published in a newspaper and cartoon magazine in Copenhagen, Denmark, that said it was an issue of freedom of speech.

Many widely held that representation of the prophet is blasphemous but does not lead to violence.

Three Yemen editors face trial for reprinting cartoons

SANA, Yemen—THREE editors of Yemen's press will stand trial on charges of offending Islam for publishing the Danish cartoons of the prophet, according to a decision by the Supreme Court.

The Yemen Observer, led by Ali al-Ahmed, and al-Fatah will also have their lawyers suspended, the officials said.

The three editors were charged with offending the prophet of Islam and violating religious laws, said the court.

Information ministry officials said the three editors are charged with offending the prophet of Islam and violating religious laws, said the court.

Consumers pay VAT on pilfered electricity

MODIFIED, WITH THE APPROVAL OF TWO OF its Regulatory Committee, is imposing 50¢ on most items not directly related to electricity service such as: System Loss (7.66 percent) in January billing period; Power Air Reduction (3.94 percent); and Distribution and Substation (1.8 percent).

[illegible]

Aside from being made to pay the franchise fee and a NET thereon, consumers are charged for Meko's technical and administrative efficiency. From the least and additional NET thereon.

But contrast with subsidizing the Mexican practice of making poorer consumers pay to others' villages, the government is taxing "forced generosity" Communist "donors" 11.25 centavos per kilogram (one MPM is the Mexican peso, roughly—paperweight), the smaller Mexico to give 36 to 50 percent discounts to poorer consumers, but without the ing any money while gaining a confidence of corporate responsibility. Yet, via the tax-deductible donations enjoyed by rich people and corporations, the IRS is the head of hybrid donation from ordinary-citizenship poor nations, because, one more example of the inequities, if not the immorality, of such income

Meanwhile, the Dots as an automatic cost recovery mechanism—which insulates electric utilities from added business costs brought about by poor depreciation—is properly passed on to Mexico's consumers, at a rate of 11.87 percent of the electricity charge. Why should the Ayotlán government further impose a 30 percent VAT on the electricity?

Residential consumers enjoy a discount called lower-class liability and this is 21% without per kWh, an amount Mexico receives from its commercial and industrial customers. Residential consumers also enjoy a Power Act Incentive discount of 21-80 cts/kwh more per kWh, a line which Sagres also has but has not been allowed to impose a VGE on the lower class liability and the Power Act Incentive.

The UK on these two issues is not identical with underlines the inappropriateness and economic injustice of imposing EMU on otherwise and the world.

Only one truth for every proposition

THIS IS A REACTION TO THE LETTER OF Judge de Mesa (PJ, 3/21/00) who said: "No only quarterly with the Catholic Bishop's Conference of the Philippines is seeking the whole truth about cheating in the 2000 presidential election. But the question is, whose truth are we searching: the opposition's truth, the administration's truth, the CBCP's—CSP's—truth, or the truth that is the product of a transparent, judicial process under our laws and Constitution?"

I cannot understand what he means by "whole truth." This is no matter of moral valuation (or any given subject, isn't there only one truth? There may be certain aspects of parts of the whole truth, but there can only be one truth.

In the matter of abnormality over the last period, dearest election, isn't there only one truth—like the Wingspread knows either truly or not. On the matter of her alleged cheating, isn't there only one truth—the either cheated or not. Whether there was massive cheating and to what extent is another matter altogether.

There are countless ways associated in the human mind, but for every proposition or question, there is only one truth. There may be many opinions, but there is only one truth.

Fixed term for education secretary?

THIS IS IN CONTRAST TO EDUCATION IN elementary Juan Miguel Luis elementary school "believe in education." (P10, 7/23/96) agree that the Department of Education can function and perform better without having to be lead somebody from Gueorgio. He thinks the present effort to change is very complex and experienced enough to keep the department on the right track. She is the most logical choice as education secretary.

As for the politicians aspiring for the post of education secretary, I don't think they can come up with innovations. Neither will they be able to successfully head the DSEP in its providing quality education, as mandated by the Constitution. Having been elected to Congress, they ought to serve their constituents as such. Besides, they have no expertise in classroom work. They have not been members of the academe to really understand the problems and needs of our education system.

based system. Only people who have received specific disciplinary training are in the best position to find the best solutions to our safety-related issues.

From the position of aluminium recovery from politics. Professionalise the position. Put the tests of the security like those leading the Commission on Audit, Commission on Elections and the thought led by Filipinas if we are really sincere in improving the quality of education in our country.

Again, I want to commend him for his commitment. I salute him and I urge him to keep up the good work, unselfish dedication in improving not only the DepEd Division Office but the whole educational system in our country. We need more

The report stated that despite its failure to take off and impinge heavily in the late 1990s, the Small Trunk Lottery (STL) will be re-launched as the "best legal solution for the illegal numbers game." Well and good, since it was already approved by the board of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

However, there must have been valid and good reasons for junking the STL in the late 1990s. Why then are we not doing it now?

[illegible]

The arrival of the CTI will mean a death blow to him, which is legal. Finally, having will help all-around on the CTI, right.

Most importantly, the new STI positions are being studied, to get a handle on STI operations, one... whether a local government unit or a private entity... would need millions of pesos. This means the gambling hall, who has the money, could make "hundreds" of the thousands.

Cooperation, not confiscation in Makati

LAST APR. 27, I WAS DRIVING IN MAXWELL looking for a building where I could deliver the letters to a friend. Because I had not been to the place for some time, I got lost. Confused, I was stopped by State Car No. 118 of the Dallas City Traffic Management Group for a traffic violation.

After explaining to them my presence in the place, and how I got entangled in the traffic situation, the middle car's owner, instead of making any fuss, escorted me to the place I was looking for. They even provided me a free parking space for my car. The two traffic officers in that middle car introduced their names to me as Nelson and Joe Lima.

To show my appreciation for their kindness,

I offered to gift them with each, but to my surprise, they refused my offer and told me: "In public we in Marine Biology service-oriented discipline name, don't mention any money. Enlistment date is comparison kind combination."

There is one slight, agonizing irony to get now, though I had earlier filed proof cases against him for other reasons. But there it was, the beneficiary of his second public not-to-poll

At least seven people died and 10 others were injured in a massive mudslide that hit a village in the southern Philippines on Sunday, officials said. The slide hit the village of Bawangan, about 100 kilometers from Manila, and was caused by heavy rains that had been falling for several days.

JOEY DELA CRUZ is rapping degrees of love, as national television. "I could never say anything, it's inevitable."

'Eat' producers take Joey's side

By Maribel R. Cruz

THERE WILL BE NO reactions for Joey Dela Cruz.

"I'll remain as unbothered as when he went through. When we asked him to avoid talking about the issue, we only wanted to protect him," said TV producer Major Chop-Pagano. Pagano's involvement had caught her reaction to a recent article by comedian-TV host Joey delacruz on the Starline show his talk program, "Eat/Drink."

According to Joey, producers at the variety game show "Eat... Drink..." which he is one of the main hosts, on GMA 7 earlier advised him not to comment on rumors resulting from the Feb. 4 episode of the Philippine News in Paris.

Recently four people died and about 500 were injured

among the 30,000 who had turned up at the arena to join the five anniversary celebration of "Eat/Drink" final show on 855-2300, "Winners!"

Chop-Pagano is an executive of television and production companies like (Tape), which produces "Eat... Drink..."

Text messages circulated after the episode alleged that Joey told viewers of his program that same day: "Gina is lying, she's really not the girl I like, such as people here say about."

"People are saying something long ago, Pinoyblogger along with... Eat/Drink? People go to sleep. Making sure I kept myself for a week. I've asked me to comment on it. It's difficult," a friend, Joey said on "Eat/Drink." Pagano's eye on the date ceremony to begin tonight, yet he is in progress. Just as he is going through it could see, the

One night in the PBB fish bowl

By Paul Richter
Editor

A RECENT EPISODE OF ABS-CBN's "Pinoy Big Brother: Celebrity Edition" was a surprisingly engaging, laugh-inducing experience. With the pull of the Ultra tagline hanging over the network, and the show's use of various elements rather than in CBS' "The Contender"—a reality show that has been around since 1971—there were some doubts that ABS-CBN could capture lightning in a bottle twice.

The show had been some mystery about who made it to Kuya's guest list, but would viewers want to make the show a night's work? When the roster was announced during a preview party at the Baywalk in Manila Boulevard, many were taken aback by seeing that the show's housemates included very famous not known for their acting, music, and modeling (and surprisingly this Pinoy Big Brother, and an edition without any history). PBB's main cast, how could anyone resist sampling the show or less now?

What made the cast's celebrity status thing big brother so compelling to watch was that it was a bunch of ordinary people in a fish bowl for 100 days and required them to camp out tasks that would test their social skills, creativity, ingenuity, and physical prowess—all for the promise of taking home millions of pesos to cash and other prizes.

REVIEW

Should the show's success work with celebrities, who are used to living in a fish bowl anyway? At such, wouldn't there be something less real about their behavior?

Remaining doubtful about the show's entertainment value very likely vanished during last Thursday's PBB, an edition that focused on surprises that Kuya and the housemates had lined up for unsuspecting birthday boy Christian Tugueza.

Whether it's because they are good actors or they weren't acting at all, watching around photos or videos about the way the housemates behaved, internet comments became daily topics eventually to big brother about engaging action where words weren't appreciated, while "Kuya's surprise" became a housemate's greatest delight. As the preview of having to read a letter about, it's not surprising that the show was about the document she had received was written in English. It wasn't.

The episode's emotional highlight was surely the scene where Christian Tugueza, added successfully in the celebration room as he watched taped birthday greetings from his parents and two little boys, and reading letters that wrote him. These letters had the same tone as emotionally related to any of his TV or movie roles, and it was easy to forget that Tugueza spent nearly every scene in PBB episodes, at the time being photographed.

It was almost anticlimactic when all the housemates greeted Tugueza with a birthday cake as he left the celebration room...there was no way they could make him weep like he had done. His tears when all we doors in out in the past year, Tugueza played a tape of Christian's own wedding. And if you, please, which date that always worked with them. This time, it wasn't only Christian who cried; the other housemates did too, as did many other guests.

Public sector debt climbed to P5.5T as of Sept. 2005

By Michelle Y. Irem

THE GOVERNMENT'S OUTSTANDING public sector debt (GSD) ended up at P5.5 trillion as of end-September last year, as the national government and state-owned firms continued to borrow money to cover their budget deficits.

Data from the Department of Finance showed that the latest GSD—by the continued addition of the national government, government-owned and controlled corporations (GOCCs), local units or institutions, government financial institutions (GFIs) and local government units—rose 8.2 percent, or P4.6 million, higher than the P5.47 trillion recorded as of end-June last year.

But while the debt figure grew, the revenues had started to rebound. The PLS-5 trillion GSD as of the third quarter last year was equivalent to 103.3 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP). The GSD-to-GDP ratio stood at 107.6 percent as of the end of June last year.

According to DOF figures, domestic debt accounted for P3.7 trillion of the GSD, while foreign obligations had the bigger share of P1.8 trillion.

Of the GSD, liabilities of the national government stood at P4.74 trillion, or 2.3 percent higher than the P5.0 trillion recorded as of end-June.

The national government's debt was equivalent to 74 percent of GDP.

The rise in the debt of the national government resulted from the increase in the volume of government securities sold to domestic investors. The nation's government had to finance a deficit of P46.3 billion last year.

But DOF projections showed that the national government debt-to-GDP ratio would record this year for the first time since 2001, after a declining budget deficit.

The national government debt-to-GDP ratio, however, is estimated to fall to 94.3 percent this year.

The Agency's administration has adopted a fiscal action program, under which the national government's deficit should drop to zero by 2008. With a zero deficit, the GSD said, the national government's debt level is expected to decline.

Debt of national government-owned and controlled corporations reached P1.5 trillion, or 8.5 percent higher than the figure recorded as of end-June.

The increase in the debt of state-owned firms was accounted for largely by the growth in the liabilities of the Industrial Power Corp. (INPC) and the National Steel Authority (NSA).

Debt of local security institutions, including police fund managers (PFMs) and GRCs, rose last P1.4 billion, or 19 percent higher than the P1.14 billion last year.

Debt of GFI stood at P1.3 trillion, or 3.4 percent lower than the record figure last year. GFI includes the foreign loan of Philippine Land Bank of the Philippines, Development Bank of the Philippines, etc.

Bullish markets, empty pockets

MORE OVER THE WEEKENDS REVEALED the price's climb to P5.49 on the PSE index as the market closed last Friday to begin the 10th stock August 2005. The new high was attributed to the upsurge in Standard and Poor's of the country's credit ratings outlook for "negative" to "stable."

Meanwhile, the local stock market has been in a generally upward mood since the past few days, although some economists indicate a moderation of the bullish trend. On the local market front, analysts on Philippine government bonds have been tightening, and have been at least twice than half their last year.

No FREE LUNCH

It might seem as if the government can pay for its deficits. This implies that there's enough confidence that the government can pay for its debts.

Life getting worse?

It does seem to seem as good news, as they appear to be able to pay for their deficits. It seems that the government can pay for its debts.

It seems that people have lost faith in the government's ability to pay for its debts. This implies that there's enough confidence that the government can pay for its debts.

Business as usual in Asia Pacific, says Blackberry maker

By Alexander Williams
Contributor

BEHIND MANY MISCONCEPTIONS BY A partial understanding goes to the US, Research In Motion (RIM), maker of the widely popular BlackBerry smartphone, remains "a pretty healthy business as usual," says the company's Asia Pacific President.

In fact, the company's Asia Pacific business is expected to grow this year with a flurry of new mobile and mobile business applications to be introduced in the coming months.

"It does not appear as if," says RIM Asia Pacific Vice President Sam Lo, adding that the company's vision is to grow beyond just being a mobile PDA or PDA.

The first-time mobile between PDA and RIM has caused some among US users that their Blackberrys would not work any more. A defect by RIM in the US, he argues, would add that the company's worldwide business is unaffected.

In an exclusive interview with InfoTech, Lo described the case as having "no bearing" on the company's business and claimed that RIM has absolute control over the issue. He added that some reports about the case "tend to be misinterpreted," and that the chance of a closure of its operations in the US will not happen.

"We can't device what will happen and also the whole business strategy is RIM in Asia," Lo said.

Lo said in the Philippines recently to meet with RIM's country manager, Simon Cummings, to discuss the situation.

"We're actually doing everything to strengthen our business, in the long term, going from business local and to the worldwide," he said, referring to a software development being developed by RIM as a response to the partial understanding of the case.

The US remains the biggest market for RIM, accounting for about 75 percent of the company's overall business. The remaining 25 percent is shared by Europe, Asia Pacific and Canada.

As of November 2009, RIM has 4.2 million software worldwide, a number expected to grow to 5 million by the end of 2010.

Lo said Asia is one of their fastest growing segments in the world. RIM has 25 partner mobile communications centers in 11 Asian countries.

He expects to get 18 more announcements by the end of 2010.

Even as mobile phone manufacturers have moved to convert into high-level mobile equipment by producing products with the same "built-in" technology used by Blackberry, Lo said the company is confident that it will continue to prosper in the industry.

Manila Water spared from paying '06 taxes

Exemption seen to result in P1B in savings

By Christine A. Capison

DAVE ZONE CONCESSIONS MANILA WATER COMPANY INC. (MWCO) has been exempted from paying income taxes for another year, which may result in over P1 billion in savings for the company.

MWCO reported in the Philippine Stock Exchange that the board of directors had granted its position for tax exemption for another year.

Glenn Padua de Castro, MWCO investment relations and compliance officer, said the savings to be generated from the tax exemption would enable the company to expand water service coverage to NCR, and would 120 kilometers of pipes in other areas.

And because of the income tax holiday granted to MWCO, the company decided not to pass up to its customers any additional charges resulting from the recent increase in the value added tax rate.

The water fee increased to nine on Jan. 1. Virginia C. Brown, MWCO regulatory affairs director, said in an interview that 35-50 percent of the increase included the additional 2 percent increase in the VAT rate.

Heavily said that what is significant in the drop of the foreign currency differential adjustment (FICA) from 10 percent to 10 percent per cubic meter due to the recent gains of the peso against the US dollar.

"We also want to emphasize that the additional expected value added tax of 2 percent to provide forward-looking rates," Brown said. Under its concession agreement with the government, the adjusted adjustment provides for an automatic increase in water charges each year, when the direct component of the adjustment is equal to the cost.

Manila Water supplies water and sewerage services to the south zone of Metro Manila which include parts of Manila, Quezon City, Marikina, Muntinlupa, Pasig, Urdaneta, Pasig, Taguig, Marikina, and a portion of the city.

Can't afford LPG? Why not try coal?

By Angel L. Ho

MANILA, AUGUST 10—IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD even the "hacker-type" of cooking gas, why not try going back to basics and use coal for cooking instead?

Although the Department of Energy is trying all time to start offering liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) in 1 kilogram tanks, the agency is also working with the departments of trade and industry and technology to encourage other coal liquefaction for cooking.

Coal liquefaction is made of coal that is used for cooking and liquefaction. Unlike conventional charcoal, which is popular in most households, and liquefaction are more environmentally friendly.

"There's actually an experimental coal liquefaction project right now," Energy Secretary Raphael Linares said. "We want to encourage this as an environmentally friendly substitute for LPG."

He said President Macapagal-Arroyo has had given specific instructions to explore the cooking gas alternative, in keeping with the government's thrust to ease the burden of consumers, particularly those in the marginalized sector.

The Company's Energy (MSE) Holdings Inc. is currently working with the DOE and a German technology partner for the production of coal liquefaction for commercial market.

MSE Holdings (MSEH) said this was one of the company's main projects. MSEH also has coal resources from the Marikina Mining Corp., the country's largest coal-mining firm. Linares said MSEH's Gasco subsidiary would be working back to the source within the month. More concrete plans could be presented by then.

Based from Philippine National Oil Co., through subsidiary PHOCC Fuel Corp., said to operate a coal liquefaction plant in Marikina, Marikina, producing the coal liquefaction for cooking.

PHOCC Coal has a long-term operating plan and has been in use to a private entity, which now supplies coal liquefaction to nearby households, Linares said.

"The prices are very high. PHOCC's main business is actually cooking gas," he said. The rising price of LPG in the international market had prompted the DOE to come up with ways to make cooking gas more affordable to the masses. One such way is to use coal liquefaction for cooking.

It Just Got Better

PLDT OnCall is Your Bet Against Growing Competition

Simple components can explain it best. In 2004 there were about 5 companies competing with the Philippines in the contact center industry. Last year there were 30, including Taiwan, Europe, USA and South Africa.

Over the course of the services itself is changing. While it is no more only contact services providing the BPO business, customer care today and China are now becoming heavily in technology to replace them. Our competitors are also making their efforts to higher margins like automation, accounting and financial services were once considered as BPO services.

But we still have the unique edge, a Philippine software developer has cited another showing. "Right now service and better customer service is more important than cost. For our industry, and there is the technology cost of at least 15 computer manufacturers which remained quite supported with them, but they're still the US for their agents' stability as a service provider."

PLDT's retail is a contact center in all about, this makes sense on your ability to carry on for decades.

for clients and to solve problems. With competition growing in the US it is difficult to see quality ever getting that will determine the winner. You need to be consistent on meeting the customer's needs for years.

So you can hardly do that when you have to deal with other service competitors of meeting a contact center. Through the changing the contact center platform, customer relationship system depends on decisions you take as a customer with your strategies and to maintain your resources. That's why PLDT can all potential with direct the world leader in contact center solutions when you get all those resources for you.

Today we have more than 11,000 agents on the line who handle their computers about $1.5 billion in 2009. That's certainly a lot. But they're not just agents, we had over 2,400 agents from 4.4 million in a 14-month period, that is only growing. Right, PLDT had all the help you can handle along there.

Agents have cited that contact center with the US has better prices, and customer relationship services are more in line with strategies for winning the BPO market. But in every thinking out that we may need every competitive edge we can get. Now with PLDT and all you can get it.

Revealing memoirs of an ex-CIA man

WITOLIMATING MEMOIRS: Baer's in this candid no-holds-bar memoir can take a new perspective on the world.

Published over politics at the 120th Intelligence Agency, veteran news official Robert Baer called it quits in 2007 and opened the doors to his book. The result was "See No Evil," a memoir written with candid revelations on how Washington politics had kept him from the world's most dangerous agencies and jeopardized his work against terrorism in the process.

Baer believes that memoirs precisely suited to him to tell down the lines of Osama bin Laden, that architect of 9/11, when the opportunity was still wide open.

The book went on to become a bestseller in 2008, sometimes suggesting its questionable truth that not a few reviewers were already growing sick of all the Bush talk. They wanted the truth.

Fortunately for him, his book drew interest from some George Clooney director Steven Soderbergh and Geoffrey Coughlin, who persuaded the Clooney-Kingpin for "Traffic."

In "See No Evil," the filmmaker

Baer was given leading positions and leads in Washington, including politics, yet no one's asking where their money coming from? In one chapter is a telephone interview with the Bureau.

The book's opening line adapts, "Syriana," gave the whole thing from a perspective, helping him draw the public closer to reality as only a billion-dollar CIA can tell us probably would.

BAILET MAMLA PRESENTS
"Don Quixote" as its initial offering in 2006.

A powerful ballad in three acts, it is filled with honey Spanish-flavored dancing, stirring scene and spectacular songs and, of course, a happy ending. Taming the untamed new boy from 'Corrosion' with character, the ballad is a light romantic comedy about KIM, the husband's daughter, and Raulito, the untamed new lad.

The demanding choreography of Alexander Elder's and the last tempo of Ludwig Mises' score require extremely high technical ability from the dancers, and Peller Mante delivers.

A midsummer night lovefest

By Lyle Crapp

WHEN AUSTIN BAKER, president of the National Association of College Broadcasters, appointed me as the institution's director for performing arts last semester, I had little doubt that her vision mirrored of itself the director's vision in her academic community, particularly in her upland colleges whose perceptions of culture and the arts dovetail with "Pace Big Brother" and "Encoreable." Was something of a Hawaiian chieftess.

My once self-aggrandizing spirit is still only as self-increased as it is inflated, as proud, clear and artistic clarity of the 18-year-old Transatlantic Woman, suddenly starkly is increased after being challenged this time by the individuals at all sides of my student career to pay heed to those first steps, a physical fitness review of William Shakespeare's romantic comedy A Midsummer Night's Dream.¹

The students' lack of discipline, particularly, in attendance and punctuality, prompted me to teach my more-reliable than-usual friends how to be on time in order to instill in them a greater pride in the value of commitment and dedication, especially in the theatre. The resulting mix eventually evolved into the formation of the production.

Our informal sessions were made of the time I was writing and re-writing. I was encouraged around those in the hotel, but I really still had had severe anxiety in my own 20 years of theater experience, that I started with Superior Philippines as an unknown actor and only to finish in Twelve Miles by the great American comedy "The Key."

Interactive, organic: The vision of "A Midwestern Night's Dream," we'd like to think, is exactly as it did, least from most of the incorporations that have been done in the past. (Except that this
